Armed Men Take Guns From Officials; Order Them Out

LOGAN, W. Va., Aug. 13 — Two troopers of the state police and two deputy sheriffs were surrounded and disarmed by a party of armed men near Sharples, 10 miles from here, last night, according to advices reaching Sheriff Chaffin today. The officers were ordered out of the community and told not to return.

According to Sheriff Chaffin, the officers had been sent there to cover that section and upon their arrival last night they were met by the armed party who told them they were not wanted there and they must leave at once. There was added and they returned to their station in Logan.

Sheriff Chaffin said there was no labor trouble in the county, that the demonstration against the officers was in no sense industrial and that the men were at work this morning.

KATO IS TO HEAD THE JAPANESE DELEGATION

TOKIO, August 12.—Vice Admiral Kato, director of the naval staff college, has been informally selected by the Japanese navy to head this country's delegation to the conference on disarmament and far Eastern questions to be held in Washington late this autumn, says the newspaper Nishi Nichi. He is to be accompanied to the United States by Captains K. Yamashita, Y. Yedda Nagano and six other officers.

The League of Nations' Association of Japan has adopted resolutions supporting the principles actuating President Harding in calling the disarmament conference.

"The practical realization of the reduction of armaments, 'the resolution state' will be extremely difficult as long as a great power like the United States remains outside of the League of Nations. The American people looking to an international conference is particularly gratified unambiguously, as it is a step forward in the right direction."

Hughes to Head American Delegation
WASHINGTON—President Harding has designated Secretary of State Hughes to head the American delegation to the disarmament conference.

PREPAREDNESS HANDED SOLAR PLEXUS BLOW BY HARDING REGIME; SEEK AGREEMENT TO END WARS

By DAVID LAWRENCE
WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—Preparedness, of which so much was heard first from Republican spokesmen and later from Democrats has received its first solar plexus from the Harding administration. Secretary Hughes in his formal invitation to Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan to a conference on reduction of armaments has enunciated a doctrine which the liberal element has been preaching for years to be derided by their opponents.

Armament, in the opinion of Mr. Hughes, is "not only without economic justification but is a constant menace to the peace of the world rather than an assurance of its preservation."

There is a school of thought even in the Harding administration which doesn't agree with that theory and in Congress, to be sure, there always has been an element which like the nation, security leagues and kindred organizations insisted that the surest preventive for war was preparedness. The naval and military expenditures of the United States government have been variously defended on the ground that it was necessary to arm against potential foes but the Harding administration through Hughes' note to the powers has reverted to Woodrow Wilson's theory which is that armaments should be reduced to a point consistent with domestic safety—that armies should be large enough only to exercise domestic police power and that navies should be simply coast guards.

But the decision of the Harding administration as reflected in the Hughes' note—to insist that armaments are a "constant menace to the peace of the world rather than an assurance of its preservation"—is really a sequel to the latest tests whereby bombers from airplanes was plainly shown to be a danger to the capital ship which might in the future prove conclusively the waste in the enormous burden of naval armaments. Some hint of this is given in Mr. Hughes' further declaration that "it may also be found advisable to formulate proposals by which in the interest of humanity the use of new agencies of warfare may be controlled."

In other words the use of the airplane and airship in dropping bombs has revolutionized warfare and the next war unless absolutely governed by rules between the powers involved will mean an era of unparalleled destruction.

RUSSIA OFFERS TO FREE ALL AMERICANS

NEW YORK, August 13.—Official announcement that soviet Russia has granted permission for all American citizens to leave the country, if they desire, was made by George Chicherin, soviet minister of foreign affairs in a cable message received today by the Magazine, "Soviet Russia."

This is the first official confirmation of the guarantee given to Walter E. Brown, of the American Relief Administration, of the guarantee by Maxim Litvinoff, the soviet minister of foreign affairs, that permission would be granted Litvinoff is the soviet envoy negotiating for Russian famine relief.

The message said:
"All American citizens residents throughout Russia may freely leave the country if they desire. They need only inform the Anglo-American Department of the Peoples Commissariat of Foreign Affairs and present documents of identification in order to obtain visas for departure which will be granted immediately."

RIGA, August 13.—(By the Associated Press)—Difficulties arose today in the negotiations begun here over the draft of an agreement guaranteeing protection of food supplies sent into Russia for famine relief. Maxim Litvinoff, of the soviet republic, presented a number of objections both in principle and in details, to the draft presented by Walter Lyman Brown, the American relief negotiator.

It is not known as yet whether the objections will prove insurmountable. The conference was continuing this afternoon.

Meanwhile, M. Litvinoff, has telegraphed the Chechos, the soviet tribunal through Russia to release all Americans and send them to Moscow.

PARIS, Aug. 13.—(By the Associated Press)—The allied supreme council decided today that the international famine relief commission, which was agreed upon at Wednesday's session, be composed of three delegates from each country represented in the council, including the United States and Belgium. The commission will be unofficial in character and will collaborate with Herbert Hoover, head of the American Relief Commission and the International Red Cross in the Russian relief work.

TO REQUEST Cut On Iron, Steel Rates

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—The interstate commerce commission will be asked in a few days to permit a 25 per cent freight rate reduction September 1, on export shipments of iron and steel moving through Atlantic ports. This was agreed upon at a conference yesterday between representatives of Eastern shippers of iron and steel and the traffic executives committee of the Truck Line Association.

Trade competition in foreign fields, chiefly England and Belgium, necessitated reduced transportation costs. Before the application is forwarded to Washington, the schedules will be checked up with those of the railroads represented in the Western Freight Association which were said to have a corresponding agreement with western shippers of iron and steel.

PARIS, Aug. 13.—Members of the American Legion who arrived here yesterday, left Paris at 7:15 o'clock this morning for Blois, where they were to participate in the unveiling of the statue of Joan of Arc, which was presented to that city by the Joan of Arc committee of the city of New York. Sensational Rumors Of DeValera's Reply To Britain's Proposal

LONDON, Aug. 13.—(By the Associated Press)—Official confirmation of reports that the British government had offered Ireland a dominion status was given late today when a letter was made public at Premier Lloyd George's official residence, written by General Smuts, South African premier, to Eamon De Valera on August 3, just before General Smuts left for South Africa.

"The British prime minister," wrote General Smuts in the course of his long letter, "offers a complete dominion status to the twenty-six counties, subject to certain strategic safeguards which you are asked to agree to voluntarily as a free dominion. It is far more than was offered the Transvaal and the Free State."

General Smuts in his letter asserted he had been desirous of helping along an Irish settlement, but there existed an impasse which he did not know at the time how to get over. This, he said, was that both Sir James Craig, the Ulster premier, and Mr. DeValera were equally immovable in their positions; the former maintaining that Ulster would not consent to a change from her present status and the Republican leader insisting that Ulster come under a united Ireland constitution.

"Force as a solution of the problem," continued General Smuts, "is out of the question, both on our (De Valera's) and his (Craig's) part. The process of arriving at an agreement will, therefore, take time."

General Smuts explained that for this reason he considered he could be of no further use at this stage of the negotiations and therefore was going home.

Any solution on the lines of Ulster coming into the Irish state was foredoomed to failure at the present, he declared, as Ulster would not agree to this and could not be forced.

General Smuts urged Mr. De Valera to leave Ulster alone at present and concentrate on a free constitution for the twenty-six counties of Ireland, "and through the successful running of the Irish state and the pull of economic and peaceful forces eventually bring Ulster into that state."

"As I said before," reiterated General Smuts, "I don't consider one single, clean cut solution of the Irish question possible at present."

DUBLIN, August 13.—(By The Associated Press)—Optimism continues to pervade Sinn Fein circles today regarding the Irish peace proposals. It was emphasized that negotiations have not been broken off and that Premier Lloyd George's reply to the last letter of Eamon De Valera is not expected to mean a break.

Closest secrecy was still maintained in official circles relative to the contents of the communication from the Irish Republican leader, and some political writers today reiterated their belief that it was merely a step forward in the negotiations. They declared that the representative asked for explanations of the government's proposals preparatory to the meeting of the Irish Republican parliament.

He has returned from Geneva where he represented the association at the international conference on traffic in women and children, called by the league of nations.

"Owing to conditions following the war the trade is bound to flourish unless the nations of the world agree on stern repressive measures," he declared. "The general opening of the frontiers and the increase in the number of women and girls who can neither marry nor find adequate means of support are the main contributing causes."

He charged that the main hindrance to international control of the traffic was in the refusal of the government of the United States to cooperate in the movement because it was sponsored by the league of nations. The United States, he added, was the only important power not officially represented at the Geneva conference. He was sent as an unofficial observer by the Hygiene association.

LINE TO BLOCK LIQUOR SMUGGLING

DETROIT, MICH., August 13.—Armed with rifles, a detachment of state police today started patrolling the waters in the vicinity of Detroit with motor boats to guard against liquor smuggling from Canada.

The troopers, 75 in number, arrived here from Lansing last night and reported to Charles P. Canupau, Detroit representative of the Michigan public safety commission, who has declared open warfare on the liquor smugglers.

The arrival of the state police followed reports that efforts were made to flood the United States with intoxicants from Canada as the result of the court ruling in Windsor that the Ontario temperance act does not forbid their export.

Canupau declared he would get "every bottle of beer and whiskey that is brought over" from Canada.

A heavy increase in the number of applications for clearance for beer and whiskey for the United States during the last few days were reported from Windsor today.

The allied council has arrived at a compromise decision in regard to the German-Polish boundary line in Upper Silesia. The line begins near the station, passes west of Gliwice, Post, and Gross Stuhlitz, thence between Kreuzburg and Rosenberg to the present Silesian border. The black portion on the map shows the part that goes to Poland. It includes about half the Silesian coal beds. The heavy dotted line is Korfanty's line, showing the claims of the German side. The solid black and white line shows how far Korfanty's Polish irregulars got. The present settlement falls considerably short of Poland's maximum claims, but gives her the essentials she demanded, the coal mines and coal cities.

"WELCOMING THE LIGHT"

BY REV. J. C. JACKSON

It should be reckoned an evidence of faith in God and the truth that a devout reader of the Bible should welcome all the new light that can be given for understanding it aright. Who is afraid that the sun will grow dark or cold because science is adding to our knowledge of its nature? God is always increasing man's intelligence in all other fields of investigation; why not in religion also? Whether the Church will or not, the race will always be growing wiser. We can close our eyes to the light, but we cannot quench that light. Others will receive it whether we do or not. Why does God give it, if He does not mean that we should receive it? Jesus commended the faithful servant, who buried his talent instead of increasing it. Not to increase is to decrease, by letting the world pass by us, leaving us behind the age.
Some branches of the Church build walls round their premises, and also round their dogmas and rituals. You can fence in property, and you can fence out the public; but you cannot arrest the progress of humanity by sectarian restrictions. They handicap and blind only those who yield obedience to them. People who accept their opinions or beliefs ready-made for them by their ecclesiastical masters, are spared the task of thinking for themselves. They enjoy the peace of the stagnant duck pond, instead of the life of the running brook. Which shall we choose?
For Jew or Gentile, Protestant or Romanist, to assume that their belief is the sum of all wisdom, and that the past received all the light and knowledge that God means mankind to have in divine things, is merely to play make-believe with their own self-consciousness. It is not a stimulant for growth, but an opiate for sleep. The world moves, and God means that His people should lead on in its advancement, and not try to suspend His eternal law of development, or side-track humanity on any ecclesiastical switch. These self-evident facts play their inevitable part in religion, and in the revelation which God has given us in the Bible. It must never be forgotten in this connection that the sacred Scriptures are ancient, and oriental, writings. To know them we must know the past; but we are not stop with the past. The Bible is for new applications in a new world, and a new civilization, with its new problems. Jesus says that the student of the Word should be like the householder, who brings out of his treasury things both new and old. The custom and thought forms of bygone ages show us what the progressive prophets of those days did and said, and God expects us to follow their example by hearing His voice in our own time, and keeping step with the march of the centuries. Loyalty to truth and righteousness does not bind us to an acceptance of all the ideas and phrases of these ancient men of God. Bishop William P. Anderson, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, well says: "No man can read the Scriptures of either the Old or the New Testament intelligently, without remembering very often that the writers of these precious Scriptures were a highly imaginative people. They delighted in figures of speech, and one which they used often is the figure of the imagination of the prophet, and then the treatment of that as though it were actual history."

It was impossible for them to do otherwise than speak as they did, if they were to be understood by their own people, to whom they addressed themselves. Had a miracle made it possible for them to foresee the conditions and customs of modern times, it would not have done for them to use as figures of speech automobiles for "chariots," gum boots for "sandals," self-binding reapers for "sickles," airplanes for "wings," cannons for "swords and spears," Prince Albert, coats and Panama suits for "robes," and gowns etc., ad infinitum. All of this would have been unmeaning jargon to people, 3,000 years ago. But does any one imagine that if these same Scriptures were to be written today, in Christian countries, the same figures of speech would be used as in olden times? Likewise, their very limited ideas of the Universe and its Maker and of the human race, and how God brought us into existence, and our duties to mankind and commerce and education, and sanitation, and medicine, and music, and art, and everything else pertaining to modern civilization—no one thinks of accepting these binding on ourselves. Is it reasonable, then, to suppose that in the most important of all things—Religion, God could give the fullness of light and truth to a people who would be no more capable of understanding or practicing it to the limit than they would have been of adopting any of the other improvements which God has given us in the twentieth century?

In other words, the churches must face the rising sun. God put man's eye in the forehead of the head, and meant by the shape of his feet that he should not walk backwards. The Golden Age is yet to come. Christ's kingdom is coming daily, as He taught us to pray. Modernism is God's watchword. If the church fails to give her young people the benefit of His later and greater revelations in nature, science, history, and the moral consciousness of the race, then they will eventually learn it from other sources and their instructors may not be so sympathetic with religion. Unless God's people keep the lamp of life trimmed and burning, He will consign it to more obedient torch-bearers.

Recover Sanity on Deathbed.
Persons who have been deemed hopelessly insane have been known to regain complete sanity in their last hours of life. One man who had been a maniac for years, confined in an asylum, expressed on his deathbed the most touching regrets for having so long left his mother alone and unprotected. A woman recovered from a profound melancholia, so that she was able to arrange her affairs and bid her friends farewell with the greatest dignity.—Buffalo Express.

There's More Money in Beets Than Books so Law Is Ignored

Joe, who is six years old, doesn't look very happy and nobody can blame him much for it. It's a fact, no doubt explainable to gentlemen who employ children, that when a chap is six he is naturally possessed of a depraved and vicious desire to romp and play. In addition, there are a lot of unreasonable interring persons who insist that at about that age a boy or girl should start going to school. They have even gone so far as to build school houses, and pass laws making school attendance compulsory.
But in the beet raising districts of Colorado and of Michigan, in the cotton growing areas of Texas, Oklahoma and Imperial Valley, California, in the tobacco raising regions of Kentucky and Connecticut, the berry fields of Michigan and California, the cranberry bogs of New Jersey, the onion fields of Ohio and on the truck farms of Delaware, they don't pay much attention to school attendance laws. The child workers attend only when there is no work to be done in the fields. The farm owners are influential and the school officials hesitate to antagonize them. You see, if a "beeter" or cotton picker or tobacco plantation hand can work his whole family, individual wages and piece rates need not be so high and nobody suffers except a lot of shirkers or ignorant or greedy to know or care that the denial of justice and opportunity to children is race suicide of a more cruel sort than denying them birth in the first place.

The National Child Labor Committee has inaugurated a campaign to awaken public opinion to the enormity of the crime that is being committed against those who will form part of America's manhood and womanhood a few years hence, and is in need of funds to carry on its work. Public opinion, the committee believes, can bring about enforcement of the school attendance laws and can educate parents and farmers to a sense of their duty just as it caused the enactment of legislation to end the factory child labor evil.
David Franklin Houston, who was Secretary of Agriculture and subsequently Secretary of the Treasury in President Wilson's cabinet, is chairman of the National Child Labor Committee. Owen R. Lovejoy is general secretary and many other men and women of national prominence are affiliated with the organization. Contributions should be sent to V. Everett Macy, treasurer, at 105 East Twenty-ninth Street, New York City.

EXHIBIT TONIGHT

"BARE KNUCKLES"
Is WILLIAM RUSSELL'S latest and strongest picture.
See it at the Exhibit.

One of those good Century comedies.
Here we have William Russell in a William Fox production called "Bare Knuckles," and after Russell, go through with the gangs who opposed his laudable efforts in behalf of a cleaning girl, one went away with the feeling that bone and sinew were properly directed, will always win over sleek and bullets improperly directed.
Russell has a picture that caught the crowd, and William Fox has given him a cast that played up to the star and got all there was out of the stirring story written by A. Channing Edgerton. The skilled hand of Director James Patrick Hogan was also evident particularly in the storm scenes in the Sierras—which were the real thing and not studio made.
Russell gave a typical Russell performance as "Brute" McGuire, a construction boss who beat down opposition two-handed and without the gun or knife so common in Western pictures.
Mary Thurman made an appealing heroine and won her audience with her beauty and sympathetic appeal. In fact all the players gave most intelligent performances.
At the Exhibit tonight and Saturday.

Invention of Egyptian Barber.
It was a barber named Ctesibius who put together the first organ in Alexandria in 250 B. C. It is related. Thirty years later the great Archimedes improved the instrument to such an extent that he produced "Pleasant Sounds"; but the fame and claim of Ctesibius has been well established by research. Pope Vitalianus is credited with having brought this eastern invention into the west, and in 638 A. D. the first organ was used in a Roman church. Not until 1000 were material changes made in the original construction, but after that progress became rapid and organs of the Thirteenth and Fourteenth centuries were nearly equal in volume and tone to the most modern instruments.

Peanut Not Really a Nut.
The peanut is not a nut; it is a pea. It is a trailing, struggling plant, growing from one to two feet high, with thick, angular, pale green, hairy stems and spreading branches, and it ripens its fruit or its peas or nuts, under ground. It is a strange habit. Small yellow flowers are borne at the joints where the leaves are attached to the stems and as soon as pollination takes place the flower fades and the "peg," as it is commonly called, buries itself in the ground, where the pod develops.

MAY ALLISON in EXTRAVAGANCE

The Story of a Girl Who Didn't Know She Didn't Care
By BEN AMES WILLIAMS
Scenario by EDWARD LOWE, JR.
Directed by PHILIP E. ROSEN
RAYARD VEILLER, Director of Productions

Tonight is Positively Your Last chance to see May Allison, the Delightful Metro Star in "Extravagance," the story of a Wife with a Silken Soul and a Glamour Income—Added Feature—Larry Semon in "School Days," one of his best Comedies.

More real than life itself! That was the verdict of the audience that saw the first performance yesterday of "Extravagance" at the Eastlund theatre, and behind Metro's star, May Allison, superbly personate the extravagant young girl who wished to climb up the social ladder, only to find her husband to the brink of ruin. The picture's universal appeal, the theme which went home with such directness captured attention as few others have done.
Which is another way of saying that "Extravagance" is a unique picture.
To the reviewer it seems that none but Mae Allister could have taken the role of Nancy Brown; from her entrance as the fiancée of Richard Vane, the young lawyer who later forced a check to keep his wife's love and permit her to live as she was accustomed, to the catastrophe, her convincing acting proved her to be the perfect type for the part.

Local Tennis players Were No Match For The Speedy Jacksonian Players
The Jackson correspondent of The Times sends the following report of tennis games staged there Thursday by Portsmouth and Jackson racket wielders:
Portsmouth sent four players to Jackson for a match game of tennis on Thursday. Two games for singles were played in the morning. Benton, of Jackson, and Staten, of Portsmouth, resulting in 6 to 0 and 6 to 4 in favor of Portsmouth. The other game between Pride, of Portsmouth, and C. Clair, of Jackson, with 6 to 0 and 6 to 2 in favor of Jackson. In the afternoon the playing began with a game of singles between Hopkins of Portsmouth and Powell with 6 to 2 and 6 to 3 in favor of Jackson. The doubles were played by Staten and Hopkins for Portsmouth, and Roberts and Powell for Jackson. Three games of 6 to 2, 6 to 3, and 6 to 3, all won by Jackson. Another game of singles between Staten and Roberts ended with Roberts winning for Jackson 4 to 0. The games proved quite exciting, and some excellent plays were made by both sides. The splendid crowd that witnessed the games would have been much larger if there had not been a threatening rain all the afternoon.

To plead with the boys that their brains and growth will be stunted will probably not influence them in the least. Nevertheless it is true. You may be able to bribe them to stop by doing something for them that they would like better than the cigarettes.

Of course I do not know how much money you have to do with. You might, however, be able to save to buy a kodak, a bicycle, or to give the boys two weeks at a boys' camp in summer.

As a rule, I do not approve of the bribe method, but often it works where nothing else will. When mother and father are divided in their opinion, discipline is practically impossible.

You may be able to influence your husband and convince him that the boys will be stunted. He extremely tactful, however, because if you antagonize him he will tease you more than ever and will give the boys cigarettes simply because he knows it worries you.

The burdens of life rest heavily on many shoulders. Pray for peace and wisdom to guide your little family in better paths. Treachery is worse than nothing. Good cheer, a sympathetic understanding and fellowship with the boys will help more than all the words of wisdom in the world.

HOT, DIZZY FEELING

Atlanta Lady's Uncomfortable and Annoying Condition Relieved, She Says, by Cardui.

Atlanta, Ga.—Miss Alice Frances Young, of 23 East Alexander Street, this city, says: "After entering womanhood, I suffered so much with womanly weakness. My back ached. I would have, at certain times, a hot feeling that seemed to go to my head. Even my shoulders would hurt, and I made no very dizzy and uncomfortable. When the blood would flow to my head, I suppose that was what it was—I would faint and feel so weak. I couldn't do my work. I had a good position, and this was surely annoying as well as embarrassing. I would usually have to go home and go to bed. I certainly suffered greatly. I heard of Cardui, and my mother bought it for me. It was the first and only medicine that ever did me any good for this trouble."

Dizziness, headache, sideache, backache, tired-out feeling and other disagreeable symptoms are often signs of womanly troubles. Declares Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to Be the Best Medicine for Girls and Women

Hamilton, Ohio.—"I had such awful pains in my back I could hardly stand on my feet and I was never without a headache. If I walked up town I would drop and many a time I felt so bad I had to go to bed and I was not able to do much of my housework. I would have hemorrhages every two weeks and dragging down pains. I had been feeling badly for three years and had two of the best doctors in the city, but I kept getting worse and only weighed 125 pounds. I saw your advertisement and I took eight boxes of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Tablets, four bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine and your Liver Pills and noticed an improvement right away. Now I weigh 188 pounds and feel fine. Everybody tells me how well I look and asks me what I took and I always say, 'Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, the best medicine in the world for any sickness to which girls and women are subject.' I will always have a good word for your medicine."

WONDER IF THE MEN WOULD VOTE FOR THE RETURN OF THE OLD STYLE DRESS?

The modern girl and her sister of a generation ago.

A WIFE IN THE MAKING

BY PHYLLIS PHILLIPS

THE ACCUSATIONS MADE

"Lo, there, Cherry. Naughty girl to run away from us so long," called Ned as he caught sight of his wife. Then he ran down the steps to kiss her. Cherry felt herself suddenly indifferent to his caresses, as she remembered, but there was no need to betray her state of mind to Jack, so she did her best to play up to her husband's mood.

"Then having a gorgeous time over at the Hamiltons," she assured him, as she lifted her lips to his.

"They are the kindest people ever," Ned said. "I like and love to have them here. Jack did a disappearing act after first giving Cherry a loving look, asking not to mention his affairs of the heart to Ned."

Once alone, the husband and wife glared at each other tensely for a moment before going into the case.

"Mother was upset at your absence. She seems to think that that young fool of an Arthur has some sort of an attachment for you."

"She would," sharply from Cherry. "And there are so many other unpleasant things that your mother sees and would like to 'think' about me that this one does not in the least surprise me. If she only 'thinks' what need for her to give utterance to words. Her thoughts are far better off in her own heart and head. At least they are not destructive to anyone but herself there, and I'm not in the least interested in what she thinks about me, anyhow, anywhere that she lets my thoughts of her worry her for one instant. I'm off to bed. Ta."

"No need to be so sulky, Cherry. If you give her ground for criticism you must be prepared to get it."

"Oh, really? Well, I wonder that your mother has not taken the time to look about her more thoroughly—in your direction, say—for I feel sure that she might have a great many more 'thoughts.' I know that even I have had a few in the last twenty-four hours," said Cherry, now thoroughly roused.

"I have nothing to hide from either you or mother. And what you are trying to insinuate only you yourself know," answered Ned indifferently. These scenes were becoming very regular in their midst.

"And I don't wish to know anything about you or what you do. I'm sick to death of routine and suspicion. I want a chance to be myself. To talk as I like and not have to fear that my every word is being weighed by people who can never, never understand me. I never dreamed that a man could be satisfied to have his wife bossed around by his mother the way I have been ever since I came here. Do you think I had to marry you, Ned? Do you think I need stand for every morbid thing that goes on here? No, indeed, I don't. Let me assure you of that."

"And do you think that I need to stand by and watch another man, my friend at that, kiss my wife?" whispered Ned angrily, as he felt himself cornered.

"Oh! So you followed me last night. You sly! You had your own fun with Arline, but watched me all the same? Well, I'm glad that you saw. I have no explanation to offer. Take the news to your mother and get her verdict on me and my character. I don't care. But don't forget to tell her about your own two-hour disappearance with Arline and the empty car standing in the road this afternoon when Mr. Hamilton and I passed by. Where were you and she then?" And with a final hiss of anger Cherry dashed up the stairs to her room.

Mistake Corrected

Prices of jumper dresses are coming down—not ruling up, as one would be led to believe in reading Friday's advertisement of The Atlas Co., when jumper dresses were quoted at $3.98. The price should have been $1.99 and was so written in the copy. The jumper dresses are exceedingly pretty, coming in pink, rose, tan, green and lavender, and well worth $3.98, but for quick selling they have been marked $1.99 and should find a ready sale.

HELP! AIRSHIP FALLS INTO THE OHIO; O. K.; IT'S A HYDROPLANE

Dipping, circling, and gliding over the city, a silver-winged plane brought hundreds of citizens to the streets, where they watched its progress with shaded eyes to protect them from the rays of a high noon sun.

Suddenly the engine stopped. All in mid-air was still. Many of the watchers gazed in horror as they saw the nose of the plane dip downward into the general direction of the Ohio river.

"Ting-a-Ling!" "Chang-a-Lang!" The above sounds, invaded the editorial staff room of the Times. Calls came in from all over the city saying that they had seen the bird-man fall into the Ohio river with a giant silver plane.

Investigation showed that the plane was in the Ohio river, near the wharf street, but they also showed that it was a hydroplane, with a habit of lauding in water. It came here from Marysville, Ky., and has been at Coney Island, Cincinnati this week. It is owned by Captain T. M. Deeds of Mississippi, and is piloted by Robert Gast, of Louisville, Ky. The plane also has two mechanics A. L. Dreyer, of Indiana, and H. G. Bilger, of Louisville.

It will be at the wharf boat for two or three days, taking up passengers. It is equipped to carry four passengers at one time.

MRS. DAN EGBERT DROPS DEAD

Mrs. Mary B. Wurster Egbert, wife of Daniel Egbert, former well known county commissioner, dropped dead Saturday morning at 11:30 while she was preparing the noon-day meal at her home in the Egbert homestead on Miller's Run, three miles north of Lucasville. Her death was attributed to heart trouble. Coroner Dr. J. D. Hendrickson was notified and left this afternoon for the Egbert home.

Mr. Egbert was sitting under a tree near his home when he heard his wife fall.

Mrs. Cyra Lambert, who is employed in the Egbert home, was sitting on the front porch and she and Mr. Egbert reached the kitchen about the same time. They summoned a physician, but Mrs. Egbert was dead before he could arrive.

While she had not been in the best of health, she was able to get around and was busy preparing the noon-day meal when the fatal summons came so unexpectedly.

Mrs. Egbert was born in 1854 and was daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John George Wurster, pioneer settlers of Portsmouth.

In 1880 Mrs. Egbert was united in marriage to Mr. Egbert. She is survived by the following children in addition to her husband: George, Walter and John of this city, Marion at home and Mrs. Louella and Mrs. Dora Johnson. She also leaves two brothers, J. George and Albert Wurster of this city.

Mrs. Egbert was a devoted wife, an affectionate mother and will be missed. She had many kindly traits of character that made her countless friends. She had reared a splendid family and died happy in the thought that she had lived for her faithful children. She was generous hearted, neighborly and forgiving. She leaves many dear friends in this city to mourn her death.

Arrested at Fair
Bernard Franck, 21 years old and H. Rhoades, 23 years old, were the names given by two men taken into custody at the Lucasville fair grounds Friday and brought to the county jail by Deputy Sheriff Wanner Rieker on charges of possessing liquor unlawfully.

The men were arrested on a tip furnished by a farmer who claimed that he observed Rhoades buy a quart of liquor from Franck, who, the officer claimed, had more than two gallons of bottled moonshine in a grip when he was apprehended at the N. and W. water tank near the fair grounds.

Rhoades, whose home is in Highland county and was employed in a refreshment stand, admitted that he bought liquor from Franck but as he appears to have been made the victim of circumstances no charge will probably be pressed against him.

The body arrived at South Portsmouth from Hoboken, N. J., with a soldier escort, who has returned to his post.

Non-Union Workmen Assaulted

YOUNGSTOWN, O., August 13.—Three non-union workmen, on their way to the construction of a church here this morning, were badly beaten by three men. The injured workers gave police the names of three strikers, trades union members, who they say were their assailants.

The Scioto County Fair, which was held at the Lucasville fair grounds on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week, will lose about $1,000 was the report given out by the Fair Board Saturday.

At the beginning of the fair, the Board had $1200 in the treasury and today they had $1000 in the treasury with one bill of $500 to pay, and many other small bills that would take the entire amount. Thus the fair will not go into debt, but would have had it not been for the $1200 to start with.

With many attractions, and the advertising campaign carried on, this year's fair would have cleared more than $1000 if it had not been for the hard rains.

Thursday was the only big day of the fair, and Friday was below the number in attendance than in 1920. The grounds were very wet and muddy. Friday and things were generally dull with the exception of the races which were better if possible than any other day of the fair.

The Fair Board has not had a meeting since the closing of the fair, but talks with each of the members pointing to the fact that the fair will be repeated in 1922 in the month of August, although no definite dates have been set, or plans made.

The treasurer's report and the program list will be ready for publication in a few days. The Fair Board is optimistic that this year's fair was the best ever held, and hope that the rain will give them a clean bill of state for the next year's attempt to make the fair in this county a paying proposition.

No accidents happened at the grounds Friday.

The races postponed from Thursday were the first to be run off, the 2:20 trot starting the bill. Liberty Bell, owned by Cliff Bell of Pedro, who took the first heat of the race Thursday, took the second heat, the first to be run yesterday. Melrose Asworthy, third place in Thursday's heat, then took the next three heats and the race. The best time of 2:20 1/2 was made by Liberty Bell.

Fritz the Great took third position. Daily Commodore, owned by Elmer Hatfield of Ironton, another third place winner Thursday, took three straight heats in the 2:20 pace. Henry Direct, owned by Fred Hatfield of Ironton, winner of Thursday's heat, took second position while Peter Blaze, owned by Ross Morry of Manchester finished third. The best time was 2:22 1/2.

The Free For All pace went to Joe Boggs, owned by Brooks Capper of Ironton, with the best time of 2:20 1/2. Melrose Asworthy, owned by Cliff Bell of Pedro, was second and Fred R. was third.

Fred Bell's Nettie McKimney took three straight heats in the 2:28 trot, the only race regularly scheduled for the day which was run. Little Jerry, owned by Fred Hatfield, gave the winner a hard fight in each heat.

The last heat the two horses continued around for another lap after the mile had been completed, both drivers urging their horses to the limit and both bawling for every inch.

The crowd in the stands were fully as excited as the drivers, and there were plenty of Little Jerry supporters to cheer him as he came in under the wire a winner after the fourth lap. Nettie McKimney took the heat only by a nose.

By the time the last heat had been completed in the 2:28 trot approaching darkness made further heats impossible, and the 2:24 trot was called off.

But one game of auto polo was played because of the condition of the track. The cars cut up the roadway a great deal in their play, and it was thought best to play but the one game.

The drivers also used a dry track to get full benefit of skidding on turns, as heavy muddy surface tends to overturn the cars. Spectators of all three days' contests said that the men entered into the game with more zest and put up a better contest than ever before.

The balloon ascension, held in the late afternoon, was entertaining in an unexpected manner. The big hot air bag rose almost straight into the air for about five hundred feet, but the parachute refused to cut loose. As the hot air cooled, the bag descended gently into one of the big trees near the stables, the balloonist clambered from his perch, and the bag freed of its weight, rose again into the air.

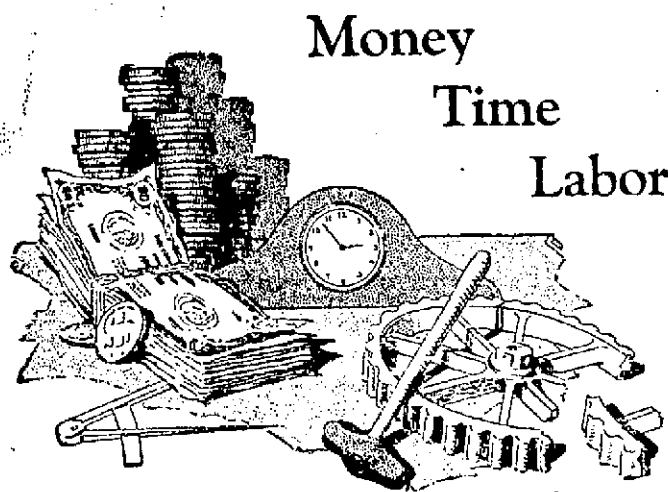

While Thursday's rain and the resulting mud spoiled the enjoyment of the biggest day of the fair, the management may well be proud of this year's exposition. In displays, features and arrangements, the fair was the best in recent years, and if the elements proved unfriendly it was not to the discredit of the management.

The extortionate rates charged by farmers handling stranded motorists, and the refusal of the parking spaces must not be charged against the Fair Board, who tried to employ the terms for such purpose free of cost to the motorists whose bidding itself caused the farmers to reject the offers of the Fair Board.

WAGE SCALE
SPRINGFIELD, O., August 12.—Following an all day conference Friday between officials of the Ohio Electric Railway Company and a committee representing the union trainmen employed on the road, announcement was made last night that no agreement on a new wage scale had been reached.

Another conference, however, will be held Monday in an effort to reach an agreement before the present contract between the men and the company expires Monday at midnight.

EXCHANGE BANK CLOSED
NEW CASTLE, PENNA., Aug. 13.—The local private foreign exchange bank was closed today by State Bank examiner L. R. Lloyd, because of alleged irregularities found in the transmission of money to Italy.

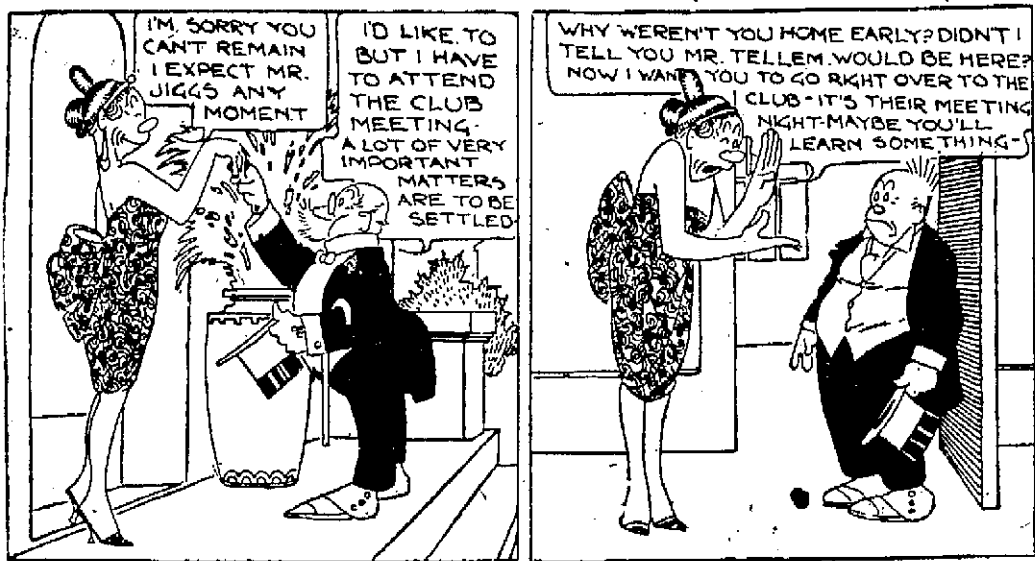

MONEY, time and labor are the three great requisites for commercial achievement. With their aid are built monuments to industry.

Business enterprise depends upon banks to adjust the problem of money in such a way as to obtain control over time and the co-operation of labor. With the bank's aid, the business man changes his credit into cash and so secures the liquid capital necessary for the rapid development of his plans. If it were not for the bank's credit facilities, he would be deprived of liquid capital, and his business would be retarded and limited to the slow growth of years.

The financial resources of this institution are at the command of merchants and manufacturers who require its aid for the successful development of their plans.

French Displeased With Plan To Submit Silesian Rumpus To The League

PARIS, August 13.—(By the Associated Press)—Viscount Ishii, president of the council of the League of Nations, is understood to have decided to summon that body to meet on August 20, for the purpose of considering a solution of the Upper Silesian problem. Estimates of how long it may take the council to arrive at a decision vary widely, running from a few days to several months.

In agreeing to submit the Silesian question to the council of the League, Premier Briand is asserted to have waived the rules providing that decisions of the council must be unanimous and the impression is that he will accept the verdict of a majority of the council.

"Deceitful" political editor of the Echo de Paris, declared the French premier made such an agreement. The idea of submitting the matter to the League of Nations, says L'Ouvre, originated with Mr. Briand, who suggested it to Mr. Lloyd George when they met at the Italian embassy last Tuesday. The British premier rejected the plan, but revised it when he found France would not give way yesterday.

Emphatic dissatisfaction with the decision of the supreme council to call upon the League of Nations to settle the Silesian question was generally expressed by the press here today.

The students of Paris today entered into the Upper Silesian controversy. Residents of the city found on their way to work this morning that the city had been plastered with large posters issued by an association of students. These posters gave a carefully prepared argument in support of the French position as opposed to that of Great Britain.

BERLIN, August 13.—(By the Associated Press)—Information regarding the decision of the supreme council to refer the Upper Silesian dispute to the League of Nations was confined to a brief bulletin received here late yesterday afternoon. The action of the council occasioned surprise in official circles, and while the government declined to discuss the new situation, there was an intimation that the French cabinet was disappointed at the council's inability to reach a final and equitable decision.

"We chiefly regret the delay involved by the new procedure," a cabinet official declared, "because it is calculated to prolong the hardships of the already sorely tried populace of Upper Silesia."

Discussing the differences between England and France as reflected in reports of the deliberations in Paris, a German official said:

"Germany had no interest in promoting an actual break in the ranks of the entente. She has an abiding faith in the righteousness of her case respecting Upper Silesia, and is quite willing to have the issue decided by the council of the League."

Feast Of Tabernacles Expounded

The Jewish feast of the Tabernacles was used as illustrative of the Christian life by Evangelist Moore last evening at the tent meeting, corner of Third and Court streets. Using as his text John 7:37-38-39, Mr. Moore showed how the eight days of this feast in its remembrance of the beginning of the journey of the children of Israel and their wanderings through the wilderness and their entering into the land of promise, was a type of first conversion where one is born a child of God, fully purged it from the very essence of sin from which all these roots spring. The last day when the whole work of God is completed the one bullock shows an undivided heart perfected in love, in perfect oneness with God. The one ram on that day shows a will at one with God's will no longer doing "one's own God's will and at another the will of sin as the two rams in the first seven days indicates.

Tomorrow services are as follows: Love feast at 10:00 a. m. Preaching at 11:00 a. m., 3:00 p. m. and 8:00 p. m. Also the preaching will continue tonight at 8:00 o'clock.

Obregon Has Not Changed Attitude Toward America

MEXICO CITY, August 13.—President Obregon still maintains his recently announced policy relative to securing recognition of the Mexican government by the United States. The foreign office last night made public statement that there was no intention on the part of Mexico to suggest a treaty with the United States prior to recognition, and that the whole attitude of the government regarding this matter had undergone no change.

This statement was called forth by an interview attributed to Henry P. Fletcher, American under secretary of state, who was interviewed by Washington on Thursday by a director of the newspaper El Universal.

Mr. Fletcher is said to have demanded that articles 27 of the Mexican constitution which nationalizes deposits of petroleum be declared non-retroactive.

"It is idle to think of granting recognition," Mr. Fletcher said to have asserted, "if Mexico is unwilling to sign a treaty of amity and commerce."

"Washington does not intend to make a peremptory demand for the payment of Mexico's foreign debt or for the payment of damages. The United States is not making an exception in Mexico's case as the same guarantees are being made of Germany and Greece."

Tax Revision Program Experiment In Vote From The White House

WASHINGTON, D. C., August 13.—An official statement explaining the administration tax revision program was issued today at the White House. It declared that "the aim was to establish methods that would release the needed revenue within a reasonable certainty, make collections sure and inexpensive and properly adjust the burden among all classes of the community."

"It is felt that highly important progress had been made along these lines," the statement says, adding: "There had been no effort to relieve the rich of their share of burdens, but rather to insure that no class will be left an avenue of escape from these."

A casual analysis of the proposals show that what may be described as "the rich man's taxes" will produce about $1,000,000,000, while the balance will be distributed over the entire community, rich and poor.

"The reduction to 32 to highest income and sur tax brackets is expected by the experts to produce actually more revenue from these sources than do the present much higher rates. The present rates prevent transactions which would involve application of the high rates, and thus keep taxes away from the government."

Also, they drive money into tax free securities, to the distress of business, and they lead to fraud and evasion."

"Experience has shown in dealing with the excess profits taxes that where there is periodic selling, this tax is paralyzing, multiplying the burden of the consumer and inducing speculation and waste. It had been largely responsible for the intense speculation that followed the war. It is an unsatisfactory tax on which to base revenue estimates, because its production of revenue is so extremely variable and in the present epoch of reduced earnings it would utterly fail to produce the amount needed."

"In increasing the tax on corporation earnings, an exemption is made of those having $2,000 or less—the poor man's corporations. The number that would thus be exempted would exceed 300,000."

After reviewing benefits which it is claimed will flow from repeal of the transportation taxes and substitution of manufacturers' taxes for the so-called "misance" levies, the statement concluded:

"The whole tax reform program contemplates freeing business from what have been found paralyzing and exasperating restrictions, encouraging in the utmost the resumption of enterprise and business, removing every possible incentive to evasion and fraud and distributing the tax burden with the greatest possible equity among all classes of people, keeping in mind the purpose to impose the larger share on those best able to pay."

Having practically completed revision of the levy sections of the 1918 law yesterday, majority members of the house ways and means committee expected to finish work on the tax bill so as to have a committee draft ready for consideration by the conference of house Republicans called for Monday.

Dickens' Characters.

The only trouble with Dickens was that when he saw the people—and no one ever saw this world and its curious inhabitants as a more vividly alive thing than he—even to its chairs and tables and door knockers, it was alive to him—he became, too, alive. Alive all over. And some salient quality of theirs would spring out at him and take on an exciting existence of its own, which more or less muted the rest of them for him and his readers. Which is, in passing, exactly what the rest of us do, only not so memorably. How many times has one described a certain acquaintance as "the man with the nose," or "that girl with the queer eyebrow"? And so, when Dickens emphasized Mr. Micawber's hopefulness, or Eugene Wrayburn's languor, or, in general, the qualities which he considered as standing for femininity in his women, he was only being a genius on recognized lines.—Margaret Wildemier in the Literary Review.

Honor "Merry Monarch."

Down to the middle of the last century the statue of Charles I at Charing Cross, London, was decorated on each May 29 with boughs of oak, while in towns and villages large branches were hung from the windows and upright boughs placed against the doors. The oak was chosen in delicate allusion to King Charles II having hidden in the oak tree at Boscombe after the battle of Worcester. The custom was not always looked upon with favor, for in the memoirs of a parish clerk written by John Arbuthnot about 170 years ago, one finds the statement about "Amos Turner, a worthy person, rightly esteemed amongst us for his sufferings in that he had been honored in the stocks for wearing an oak bough."

Chicago Grain And Provisions
CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—Wheat again displayed steadiness in prices today.
There was some buying on the reports of a light frost at Moscow, and also some buying of futures credited to eastern accounts. Profit taking sales and holding about balanced these, however. Opening quotations which varied from unchanged figures to be higher with Sept. 1, 1921, to 1 1/2% and December at 1 1/2% to 1 3/4% were followed by a slight setback and then by a slight rally to the opening figures.
Corn displayed weakness mainly through lack of support. After opening the decline with Sept. at 50 1/2 and 50 1/4, the market sagged and gave no
early indication of rallying.
The market closed steady, a shade net lower, with Sept. at 50 1/2 @ 50 3/4.
Oats were dull, opening unchanged to 3/4 advance with Sept. at 36 to 36 1/2, but later sagged all around. Sept.
dropped below 36 for the first time
this year. Trading was light, prices

The third round of the Four Man Horseshoe Tournament finds the teams shuffling rapidly. Some, like the Campbell Avenue and York Park others made a dive for the bottom. Specialists shot up like rockets while No team made a clean sweep but the Campbell Avenue Specialists came the nearest to it, taking nine out of the ten from the Terminals, and going to the top of the ladder, for while they were winning, the Iron Men were hardly more than breaking even with the Steel Plant. The Spring Street Specialists also found the Hilltop Eagles tough chewing, losing 6 out of the ten. But they will have their chance to take the top rung of the ladder on Monday night, when they play the Iron Men, while the Campbell Avenue Specialists tackle the Hilltop A. C.

The honor of the evening went to Norman Kitchin who made the highest number of points, and threw the greatest number of ringers, making 65 points, and throwing 22 ringers, against Cross 56 points and 20 ringers. This gives Norman the lead in number of points scored, having by Cross, Cross still leads in the number of ringers thrown by the safe margin of twelve.

Several other high scores were made. Belcher making 67, Mussie 67, Dougherty 66, Revare 62 and Michael 60. Dougherty threw 14 ringers, A. Rheinhardt 14 ringers, Revare 13 and Belcher and Michael twelve each.

On Courts 1 and 2 the Cleaners stopped the Pioneer Firsts' puntish rush, winning eight out of the ten games. On Court No. 1 Cross and Brierley won five straight from Rheinhardt and W. Crabtree, by the one sided scores of 21-0, 21-0, 21-0, 21-0 and 21-7. On Court 2, Thomas and Millison won their first games defeating L. Cheerfulness Preventive of Disease.

"Bad health is often due to mental disease," says a prominent physician. "Without advocating any of the new theories now existing, I am sure that most of the ills to which flesh makes itself heir could be dispensed with if people would cultivate that most simple and useful of all mental states—cheerfulness. From my experience, I note that very few cheerful people are sick as a rule. They are too busy smiling to themselves or thinking sunny thoughts to be caught in the throes of sickness. If people the world over were constantly using this boon to mankind—cheerfulness—most of us doctor folk would starve to death."

A year or so ago Danny Frush was earning most of his living as a barber. Fighting was a side line. Then he decided to give all his time to boxing and now is signed up to fight Johnny Kilbane, featherweight king, in a twelve-round decision battle in Johnny's home town of Cleveland next month. Tommy McGinty and Sam Deutch, Cleveland promoters, are pulling off the bout, the first decision affair Kilbane has been in in five years.

LIVING LONGER

WHILE the method pursued by Dr. A. J. B. Savage, of New York, to demonstrate that the "big men" of today are living longer than their historic predecessors of Greece and Rome is hardly scientific, it discloses some highly interesting facts. Dr. Savage took a list of 41 business and financial leaders of America and compared their expectations of life with the ages at death of an equal number of ancient worthies whose lives are recorded by Plutarch. The average age of the Americans is 63.8 years and to this is added the expectation of life, bringing up the average to 74.3. The average age at death of the ancients was 55.7. All the Americans in the list, which includes Amour, Gary, Eastman, Ford, Kahn, Morgan, Rockefeller and Schwab, are men of civil pursuits, commercial, financial or industrial, while the category of ancient warriors like Caesar and Alexander and scholars and statesmen.

Whatever may be thought of the basis of comparison, the conclusions of Dr. Savage will coincide with the general opinion. The average length of human life has been increasing through the centuries. "In the sixteenth century the best estimate that is to be had places the average at 19 years. At the close of the eighteenth century it was a little over 30 years and now it has so increased that we shall have to readjust our definition of the length of a generation." In the list of America's living leaders only two are under 50, and there are but few of the others who would have appeared on such a list when they were only 50.

The rush and hustle of modern competitive business life do not seem so inimical to longevity as the conditions under which the ancients lived. Great scourges devastated whole nations, while diseases with which modern medical science is able to cope successfully had not profited by the discoveries of Lister, Pasteur, Roentgen, the Curies and others as well as by the increased devotion paid to exercise in the open and other hygienic habits. The prediction is made that at least 15 years will be added to the present average life of 50. It does not seem impossible of attainment.

TOUCHING WILHELM'S TENDER SPOT

WORLDLY glory is transient at the best and those with philosophic minds accept with equanimity the mutations of time, knowing that the pendulum swings both ways and that tranquility succeeds agitation. But Wilhelm Hohenzollern is not likely to take a calm view of the fact that a number of streets and public places in Berlin are to lose such titles as Kaiser, Kronprinz, Hohenzollern and others suggestive of the once imperial family of which he is the head. This result is to come about through the action of the Berlin municipal council to change names of streets and places which have a monarchistic or militaristic meaning.

This will be a sad blow at the pride of Wilhelm, who never was known to be in the shrinking violet class. Immured in a place which at least provides personal safety for him, but for which he has no love, the ex-emperor's heart—perhaps his hope also—is in Prussia and to have the chief city of the empire he formerly ruled forgetting the homage which he no doubt thinks still is due must be gall indeed to a nature such as his. Although he fought to add to his own personal power the nation behind him pretended to think that he waged war for the glory of the empire and its protection. He must have felt that in his exile he still held the respect and esteem of a large number of his former subjects but he seemingly is being disillusioned.

Emma Goldman is described as so afraid of her life in Russia, to which she was deported from this country on account of her anarchy, that she scarcely dares open her mouth. It certainly must be torture for her not to be able to talk.

And the prosecuting attorney had cops out on the Trail Thursday laying for speeders. The cops got their per, of course, but were any speeders arrested? Such a question is impertinent and unnecessary.

A straw is said to show which way the wind blows. Quite as reasonable that the blowing in of a large number of Youngstown furnaces may indicate the early turning of the corner.

Wonderful triumph of Harding in having congress declare a state of peace with Germany, in a great hurry, but where has the hurry gone since, is the communitarian that is puzzling that same congress and a few people who take everything seriously.

The Disarmament Conference

By Frederic J. Haskin

WASHINGTON, D. C., August 12.—Some time this year probably on November 11, the anniversary of the signing of the Armistice, the great powers of the world will confer in Washington to see if it is possible for them to put an end to the squandering of money for building up huge armies and navies for protection against each other, or for aggression against their neighbors. Boiled down to its essentials, the conference will determine whether the peoples of the world, burdened and groaning under the debt of the great war, with industries slowed down or stopped, credit strained and money values far below par, will live together in amity henceforth or whether the old systems of diplomatic intrigues, alliances, large standing armies, enormous navies, and consequently tremendous expenditures and taxes will go on until civilization ends in bankruptcy and chaos.

It is generally conceded that President Harding chose the psychological time for proposing the disarmament conference. The nations of Europe and Japan, the one big power of the east, would have paid scant attention at any other time. But England and France, and other European nations are staggering under enormous debts, unable to pay even the interest on their foreign obligations, and public opinion as well as common business sense force their attention. Japan is in far better economical condition, her losses during the war being not a drop in the bucket compared to the men, munitions and money thrown into the ravens jaws of the dragon of war by the other enemies of the Central Powers. Japan's acquiescence followed the realization that world opinion would single her out as the one obstructing power bent on conquest and expansion by force of arms.

The attention of the public is now focused whether the trained diplomats of other hands are to use their cunning and devious methods in Washington, as they did at Versailles, to give the appearance of striving hard to reach a basis of peaceful settlement of all international troubles, but at the same time reserving and holding special advantages for their nations which would in effect nullify the whole plan.

Peace Treaty Intrigue. It is no secret now how the League of Nations plan crumbled and collapsed. Former President Wilson, his mind set on the acceptance of his scheme, was played upon by the premier of Europe and Japan until to get their support concessions had to be made to each of them. Great Britain demanded separate representation for each of her overseas dominions, and got that as well as other advantages. France shrewdly thought of the League plan by insisting on the acceptance of an alliance with Great Britain and the United States in addition to membership in the league as protection in the future against Germany. Japan demanded and got the Shantung settlement as her price.

The whisperings and underground rustlings of diplomatic intrigue can already be discerned, although the conference is far away. It is reported that Secretary of State Hughes has found it necessary to address an informal but strongly worded memorandum to the embassies of one of the big powers warning it that bargains and trades and sub rosa work is not to be tolerated under his administration. President Harding has set his hand to the thorough in this task, and has respectfully given public utterance to his intention to see it through. Without doubt Secretary Hughes, well equipped for the task, will be the spokesman and representative of the American government at the disarmament conference.

In effect, President Harding has taken the nations of the world as being but people in a small community—people who have from the dawn of time been bickering and fighting and stealing from each other, encroaching on each other's lots, breaking each other's windows, and refusing to pay the grocer on the corner for what they eat. Many of them are in the position of having borrowed from a rich neighbor, and now find that they cannot meet their notes.

If neighbors in a village acted as history records the actions of nations, they would be thrown into jail or ridden out of town on a fence rail. In the past it has been the universal custom for nations, strong and rich, to overpower and make subject to them their weaker neighbors. Nearly every civilization has spread itself by conquest and arms. Had Germany and its allies won, the old story undoubtedly would have been repeated.

A thousand and one separate interests will have to be moulded and shaped toward a common end when the disarmament conference meets. Harding will look with dread upon any movement which would deprive her, an island power of the trans-ons naval force she now possesses. It is inherent in the British to regard their navy as the great factor of British safety. But British taxes are very heavy, and British debts to America are so huge that the representatives of that proud nation have not scrupled to suggest the forgiveness of this debt by the United States.

France, trained to the habit of thought that her natural and hereditary enemy, Germany, lies just over the border, smarting under a crushing defeat, will make a struggle against giving up or materially reducing her large standing army.

Japan Plays Her Game. From Tokyo—the hints at obstruction of the purposes of the conference are multiplying at the mere invitation to take part in it. First Japan wanted to know the exact scope the discussions at the conference would have, and did not want the Pacific question brought in at all. This was in effect politely refused, and Japan practically had to come into the conference just the same.

Baron Sakatani, member of the Japanese House of Peers is credited with a recent interview bearing on the subject, some parts of which are remarkable in that they throw a light on the sort of thing the Japanese people are being given to read. He is credited with saying that if the disarmament conference reaches an impasse because each is suspicious of the other's motives and intentions with respect to China. It is hinted even that Japan might suspect America of imperial designs of her own in the Far East. How utterly ridiculous this is it is unnecessary to say.

The situation is not altogether without its lighter elements. There is now in Washington the representative of the ruler of one of the smaller nations to the north of India. This ruler and his father before him have been held virtually subject to England and their nation under British domination through the annual payment of a large sum to the ruler from the British treasury. This payment was omitted last year and the ruler was so upset that he is seeking to establish "diplomatic relations" with the United States. It means that he wants America to subsidize him, in return for which America presumably would get special treatment which would be to her advantage.

Moon Rays Injurious

The fact that some injurious effect—be it moonstruckness or moon-blindness—may, and very often does, follow from sleeping out at night in full moonlight, has been frequently attested by reliable witnesses, especially with regard to tropical climates. That the moon is the cause of this effect is attested by many scientists. The moon gives but a small part of the sun's light and heat, and astronomers say that we have no evidence that it affects the earth or its inhabitants, except insofar as the tides are concerned. The doctors, on the other hand, say that bright moonlight is generally found with a clear sky; that a clear sky favors radiation of heat, and that anyone exposed to this radiation is sure to be chilled by the rapid loss of heat. This chill, it is, and not the moon which causes the facial paralysis and moonblik (or moon-blindness) which some have suffered from sleeping in the moonlight. An English naval officer relates several instances of his men, who had slept on deck exposed to the moonbeams, being so blind on landing that they had to be led by the hand.

New-York-Day-By-Day

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—The life of a dramatic critic is not so roiling as it might appear. Of course, it is nice to have centre at all the playhouses, have your name in electric lights and on billboards endorsing plays and to wear a ribbon of a smile from box office grosses. Yet the dramatic critic must maroon himself in isolation in so far as the Rialto is concerned.

It is steps to chat with a theatrical producer he has succumbed to the lure of gold. He has been "bought". Just now a scurrilous charge is being whispered: A group of dramatic critics held stock in two plays by a former critic who turned producer and as a result the plays received superlative publicity, the story goes.

It so happens that the group lunches several times a week in the public dining room of a theatrical hotel in the West Forties. They are old friends and several other members of the literary join them. The luncheons serve as means of relaxation and serious talk is barred. Most of the time is consumed in good natured bantering as to who will pay the check.

The two plays in question were outstanding successes of the year. It is folly to believe that dramatic critics by an avalanche of puffery can drive the public to poor plays. Dramatic critics are carefully selected and in all the years of New York's theatrical history only one is known to have played a part in the success of a play. He is now a literary lion, scorned on every quarter. So much so that he has sought European asylum.

The only objection the layman might have to New York dramatic critics is the space they consume in reviewing a play. Some take a column or more to give their opinion. After all there is virtue in the Texas editor's review. He wrote: "Last night 'Pure as Snow' was at the opera house. Many stayed to the end."

TOPICS OF THE TIMES

THE MARCH OF SCIENCE

Dayton, Ohio, home of many wonders of human genius known the world over had something new under the sun to marvel at last week. A press telegram tells of it as follows:

"A radio controlled automobile started pedestrian on the uptown streets today when it proceeded past traffic officers without observing rules, footed its own horn, turned around, backed up and sped forward, without a driver at the wheel. The machine threaded its way down Main street traffic without accident, a practical demonstration of the success of the wireless wagon."

The car was controlled by Capt. Vaughn, who guided it by "wireless" installed in an automobile, which followed fifty feet behind. It marks another great advance in the scientific control of power without physical contact through wires between the source of power and the object controlled. It is alleged that it can be applied to anything that moves on the earth, above the earth, on the waters or under the waters. As a war device it means that destructive explosives may be directed to points where they may cause most havoc, but the world will greatly prefer its use in the arts of peace.

When one contemplates the achievements of human genius in applied science, beginning with the invention of the steamboat, and progressing to railroads, electric power applied to many utilities, the telephone, the flying machine, phonograph and other marvels, wonder grows as to what will happen in the next hundred years. Achievements trend on one another's heels, so fast they follow. Mastery of one force after another is won by man. Only the greatest of all mysteries baffles him—what happens to the soul of man after he dies. That hangs on the tree of knowledge too high to reach.

FALL AND WINTER STYLES

Conflicting reports come from Paris as to styles in women's apparel for the coming seasons. One has it that gowns will go down within six inches of the ground, and up almost to the neck, for evening wear—that modesty will be the prevailing note. Another states that daring revelations "exceedingly" daring will feature evening gowns—deeply cut at the arm holes with slit skirts.

As the world of fashion, which includes in its influence on women's garments the entire population of America, contemplates the creations of Paris dressmakers, we wonder if a thought of American domination in fashions ever flits across its mind. So long utterly servile to the decrees of the French capital, American home life in the industrial, financial, scientific and governmental achievements of the world, and is tremendously influential in them. In invention we lead, and perhaps in moral as well as financial resources.

With the fashions created for women having widespread moral effects, it seems strange that our modistes, our tailors for women, our great dry goods houses and our department stores, the finest in the world, should be utterly subservient to the decrees of Parisian fashion-makers in the dress of women. Where are the initiative, the talent, the courage, the genius of our women's supplies trades, that they meekly bow to foreign influence? Our banks, mercantile establishments, industrial plants and business activities generally are immensely larger than those of France. Have we no power to resist the thrall of an often degenerated Paris over our fashions our women adopt? Are American women to continue to strip for public gaze and ape the revelation of Parisian women because a group of Frenchmen monopolize style making?

BASE BALL

The record of professional base ball has been soiled. The trusting confidence of a public that loved the sport and believe it even as a bond's tool has been betrayed. Suspicion now hangs about the game. These are the unpleasant facts, which vigorous and honest efforts to punish culprits have not been able to efface.

For years to come professional baseball will feel the effects of the scandal in its receipts and the lowering of its reputation in the minds of the public. It was, perhaps, too much to expect that a great business such as professional baseball, managed for profit, should forever be untainted by the rascality that has at times come to light in every little business involving large sums of money. Undoubtedly Judge Landis has saved it from wreck, but neither he nor any other man can make an outraged public forget what has happened.

When the origin and education of many players in the diamond are considered, and the temptations members have presented to them are taken into account, the wonder is that discovery and exposure did not come sooner and exposure became inevitable. The horse racing became disreputable when gamblers invaded that sport. Is it in any way surprising that gamblers have given baseball an unhappy experience?

Streets With Duplicate Names

London's duplication of its street names is notorious. A casual glance at the directory reveals no fewer than ten Charles streets and half a dozen Charlottes. Park street also appears half a dozen times. Even our best known thoroughfares have their duplicates, for you will find an Oxford street in Whitechapel and a Regent street in Shoreditch.—London Chronicle.

Questions AND Answers

(Any reader can get the answer to any question by writing The Portsmouth Daily Times, Information Bureau, Frederic J. Haskin, Director, Washington, D. C. This offer applies strictly to information. The Bureau cannot give advice on legal, medical and financial matters. It does not attempt to settle domestic troubles, nor to undertake exhaustive research on any subject. Write your question plainly and briefly. Give full name and address and enclose two cents in stamps for return postage. Replies are sent direct to the inquirer.)

Q. What kind of road is recommended in the Federal-aid projects that are being administered under the Bureau of Public Roads?—E. T. A. The Bureau of Public Roads says that no particular type of road is endorsed. The legal requirement is that they shall be "substantial in character." The initial selection of a particular road will be made by the State highway department. The Bureau of Public Roads makes an independent study, a consultation is held and a decision reached.

Q. What city on the western coast corresponds to Atlantic City?—E. G. S. A. Santa Cruz, California, has been nicknamed the "Atlantic City of the West."

Q. Are foods containing gelatin injurious to the health?—W. A. F. Gelatin although not a life-sustaining food, is used in considerable quantities in hospitals and is recommended by physicians as an article of diet because of its quality of making other food more palatable or more easily digested.

Q. Can "all right" be written as one word, "alright"?—E. A. C. A. The old English form "alright" is obsolete, and the accepted form is "all right." These words do not follow the reasoning advanced for the words "already" and "altogether." These have meanings quite distinct from the words when separated into the two words "all ready" and "all together."

Q. When were the first Olympic Games held in Greece?—A. B. A. The first Olympiad was held in 776 B. C.

Q. Is the housing shortage as acute in England as in the United States?—F. H. A. The housing situation is as serious in England as it is here. At the time of the signing of the Armistice, the Minister of Labor reported a shortage of 400,000 working class houses. These are houses built before the war to return a fair per cent upon the investment at a rental of about $100 a year.

Q. What is the difference in the population to the square mile in the United States and Canada?—L. O. R. A. According to a survey made by the Canadian Government in regard to the soldier settlement project, Canada has only two and one half persons to the square mile and the United States thirty persons.

Q. How is a French crown lining made?—G. H. A. For this type lining for a hat crown, cut an oval for the top, any size desired. Cut a cord the length of the circumference of the oval and over this gather a bias strip of material the length of the head, size plus one inch and wide enough for seams and to allow a generous turn at the head. Sew to the oval with seams at the back, then slip-stitch the seam together. Pin the oval in place to the top of the crown, then pin to place at the head-size turn in the raw edge and sew.

Q. When do the days begin to get shorter and how much is the change per day?—E. C. A. The Weather Bureau says that the days begin to shorten at the time of the summer solstice, which usually occurs on June 21st, although occasionally it comes on June 22nd. The rate of change differs in different latitudes.

Q. Who built the first locomotive in the United States?—F. H. A. Peter Cooper, in 1825, built from his own design, the first locomotive ever constructed in America.

Q. Where was Alexander the Great buried?—H. D. S. A. He was born in Europe, died in Asia, and was buried in Africa. The funeral car containing his golden sarcophagus was drawn by sixty white mules from the Euphrates to the Nile, a distance of one thousand miles.

Q. Reversing Speech. A curious phonographic instrument was invented by Volman, capable of reversing the sounds of a word or a sentence. A steel piano wire, carried on two spools, passes between the poles of a small electromagnet so connected with a telephone transmitter that spoken words are magnetically recorded on the moving wire and reproduced in a receiving instrument. When the motion of the wire is direct, the words are heard as in ordinary conversation, but if the motion is reversed, the sounds come to the ear in reverse order, like words spelled backward. To represent the order in which the reversed sounds strike the ear, however, not only must the order of the letters composing a word be reversed, but each letter must itself be reversed from right to left, as when reflected from a mirror.

Q. Oldest Bell in America? St. Stephen's parish, East Haddam, Conn., founded in 1791, has in its church bell what is believed to be the oldest bell in this country. After being used for centuries in Spain it was brought along with other bells to New York to be recast into bells for American churches, and was presented in 1834 to St. Stephen's parish. The Spanish inscription on the bell is translated: "The prior, being the Most Rev. Father, Miguel Vela Mica, the procurator, the Most Rev. Father, Josef P. Silva, Cornelles, made me in the year A. D. 1517."

Q. Couldn't Trust Anyone. The town council of a small community met to inspect the site for a cemetery. They assembled at a chapel, and as it was a warm day they decided to leave their coats there. "Some one can stay behind and watch them," suggested one of the members of the council.

"What for?" demanded another member. "If we are all going out together, what needs is there for any one to watch the clothes?"

Q. Common Taters. A country clergyman was preaching on an obscure point in an original and striking manner. He concluded by saying: "This is entirely my own view. Commentators do not agree with me."

The next day he was informed that one of his parishioners wished to see him. Going into his study he was greeted with cordiality by one of his parishioners, who happened to be a market gardener.

"Morning, sir," beamed the caller. "Heard you say yesterday as common taters didn't agree wif yer, so I've brought a sack of my best. Hepe you'll get on better with them."

Q. Too Personal. Patrolman Casey had ordered a pair of shoes at Rosenberg's store and was about to try one of them on when the clerk reached for a box and deftly sprinkled some French chalk in it to ease the forthcoming trial. When he handed it back to the patrolman, he threw it on the floor, pulled on his own shoe and started out.

The proprietor had noticed the scene. "What's the matter, Mr. Casey," he panted, as he caught up with him. "Was the clerk easy or anything?"

For a moment Casey glared at him in almost speechless anger, then observed with icy dignity: "If I can't come into a place to try on a pair of shoes without havin' chloride at lime put in them beforehand, I'll thrash somewhere else."

Q. Fooling the Boss? "What makes you work so hard today, Kelly?"

"Sure, an' I'm foolin' the boss," said Kelly.

"How are you doin' that?" said Murphy.

"Sure, Murphy, it's as easy as kissin' yer hand. The boss sees me goin' up an' down the ladder with a bad full of mortar an' he thinks I'm workin' hard; but it's the same stuff I'm carryin' all the time."

Q. Annoying. A negro was receiving bricks at the top of a ten-story building where some repair work was going on. Another negro on the ground was loading the brick on the carrier. The negro on above accidentally dropped a brick, hitting the one on the ground squarely on the head.

He was very indignant and yelled to the one above:

"Be a little miah careful up ther, nigger. That brick hit me and made me bite mah tongue."

Q. Easily Adjusted. A street car inspector was watching the work of the green Irish conductor. "Here, Foley, how is this?" he said. "You have ten passengers and only nine fares rung up."

"Is that so?" said Foley. Then turning to the passengers he shouted: "There's wan too many at yer on this car. Git out o' here, wan at yer!"

Q. Maple Sugar. The sugar, or rock maple (sugar maple) thrives best in eastern Canada, and in the states of Vermont, New Hampshire and parts of New York, but nowhere does it thrive better than in the province of Quebec and especially in the eastern part, known as the eastern townships. The sugar maple (that of Quebec is much larger than that of Vermont and not so broken. In Quebec it is a little country, but it is almost mountainous, and the areas produce fine sugar, probably the best made anywhere, and especially those districts that are free of ice.
